Nine lines on why it is not necessary to search for the view, practice, conduct, and result somewhere else

Homage to the Guru Jewel!
This uninterrupted stream of thoughts is finally to be known as gnosis.
It is not necessary to search somewhere else for the view.
This undistracted ordinary consciousness is finally to be known as practice.
It is not necessary to search somewhere else for the practice.
Your own mind, which has never been separate from that, is finally to be known as being the Buddha.
It is not necessary to search somewhere else for the result.

(Translation by Jan-Ulrich Sobisch)

‘Jig rten mgon po’i gSung ‘bum, vol. nga, pp. 173 f.

Message with a great heart advice of instruction to Nag shod mKhan po

Except for practicing your own mind, there is no other means of pleasing the guru!

‘Jig rten mgon po’i gSung ‘bum, vol. nga, pp. 193

(Translation by Jan-Ulrich Sobisch)